OUR TOWN
By J. B. W.

I did a favor yesterday,
A kindly little deed—
And then I called to all the world
To stop and look and heed.

They stopped and looked and flattered me
In words I could not trust,
And when the world had gone away
My good deed turned to dust.

A very tiny courtesy
I found to do today;
'Twas quickly done, with none to see,
And then I ran away—

But someone must have witnessed it,
For truly I declare—
As I sped back the stony path
Roses were blooming there.
—Wila Hutson.

A man is poor who has lost the confidence of his friends, when people who are nearest to him do not believe in him, when his character is honeycombed by deceit and punctured by dishonesty. He is poor when he makes money at the expense of his character, when he does not stand clear—supreme in his ideal. When this is clouded he is in danger of the worst kind of poverty. To be in the poor house does not necessarily mean to be poor. If you have maintained your integrity, if your character stands forth to the world—if you have never bent the knee of principle to the god of avarice, you are not poor, even though you may be compelled to beg your bread.

The Herald reaches its readers a day late this week due to the fact that Monday and Tuesday the entire staff celebrated Christmas. This is the last issue before the New Year. Progressive minds have never been disposed to leave the old year behind with misgivings. They have welcomed the opportunity to forge ahead with Time, to explore and exploit the days that are full of promise. The year 1928 brought to us many things for which we are grateful. It has been the policy of this newspaper to bring to its readers each week a vigorous, fearless editorial policy. The many expressions of appreciation leads us to believe we have succeeded in a large measure in giving our readers a forward looking journal.

More than twelve million dollars worth of property will be taken from the tax rolls as a result of the recent constitutional amendment exempting church property. This deficit will have to be made up through added burdens on other property in Texas. Churches may now make extensive investments in property and have tax free ownership and this will greatly profit the owners. Separation of church and state!

We are faced with a road program which seems to have much merit. Readers of this column will hear much of this big project in 1929. All phases of the program will be discussed so that you can understand it. Lack of information would defeat any major program in Texas, if handled on the usual basis. Leaders should put forth every effort to give the people proper information concerning this road program as well as all other public projects.

THE ARROW AND THE SONG

By Henry W. Longfellow

I shot an arrow in the air,
It fell to earth, I know not where;
For so swiftly it flew, the sight
Could not follow in its flight.

I breathed a song into the air.
It fell to the earth I know not where.
For who has sight so keen and strong
That it can follow the flight of song?

Long, long afterward, in an oak
I found the arrow still unbroke
And the song from beginning to end
I found again in the heart of a friend.

PRESBYTERY SUMMONS KENNEY FOR TRIAL

FRIENDS HERE BELIEVE EFFORT IS MADE TO REMOVE HIM FROM MINISTRY

H. G. Kenney, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, has been summoned to appear before the Central Texas Presbytery at Temple on January 8, 1929 to answer charges filed by certain members of the local board of Elders touching statements made in sermons preached here in which it is alleged he disagrees with certain phases of the orthodox doctrines of the church.

Co-incident with the receipt here Thursday of the summons sent by Stonewall J. McMurry, clerk of the Presbytery who resides at Bartlett, it became known that Dr. Harry Emmerson Fosdick, one of the greatest of modern preachers in the world, has promised to deliver a sermon in the pulpit of Mr. Kenney if he accepts an invitation to address the Open Forum in Dallas this year.

Mr. Kenney and Dr. Fosdick are close friends, both being of the same school of scholary attainment. It will be remembered that Dr. Fosdick was

AMAZING NEW CHEVROLET SIX NOW ON DISPLAY

COLEMAN CHEVROLET COMPANY INVITES YOU TO SEE NEWEST CHEVROLET

The New Chevrolet Six is here. An announcement in this issue by the Coleman Chevrolet Company invites you to the show rooms to see this amazing six within the price range of the four which has created a sensation in every city in America where the people have had opportunity to see the marvelous new car.

Cameron is now given an opportunity to see the new Chevrolet Six car and the show rooms of the Coleman Chevrolet Company will be the mecca for admiring crowds during the next few days while the exhibit is in progress.

Mike Coleman, manager of the Coleman Chevrolet Company will be able to make deliveries at the time of the exhibit.

When the New York Automobile Show opens next week, with more than 45 domestic manufacturers exhibiting their 1929 models, Chevrolet Motor Company will again be awarded first place at the show. This award carries with it the honor position in the exhibit, an award coveted by all manufacturers because of its allotment on a strict merit basis.

Each year the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce which sponsors both the New York and Chicago automobile shows makes the award. And each year the standard of computation has been the same. Manufacturers are ranked strictly in the amount of business transacted during the fiscal year ending the August prior to the time the showing is held. The first place award applies for both the New York and Chicago shows.

Chevrolet's choice once more for this signal honor serves to emphasize the position of leadership the company has asumed during recent years. It also serves to open auspiciously a year which, W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager of the company, has predicted will see the company surpassing all of its former sales and production records.

The new line of sixes which Chevrolet will display at the show this year has already been viewed at advance showings throughout the country by millions of people. Since the mid-November announcement of the new line, Chevrolet's vast productive facilities have been rapidly getting under way at all the Chevrolet assembly plants, so that within a few weeks Chevrolet will be running close to full capacity.

The first of the deliveries of the new car are scheduled to take place throughout the country immediately after January first. Already 10,000 dealers who comprise Chevrolet's great retailing chain in this country, have been supplied with models of the new line.

Today is also important in Chevrolet's calendar because it marks the date set by company heads for a grand national showing of the 1929 models in all dealers show rooms in the United States.

RECORD XMAS SALES FEATURE LOCAL TRADE

MERCHANTS REPORT GREATEST BUSINESS IN RECENT YEARS DURING HOLIDAYS

What is believed to have been a record sale of Christmas merchandise is reported here this week by Cameron merchants following the close of the buying period on Monday of this week for the Christmas holidays.

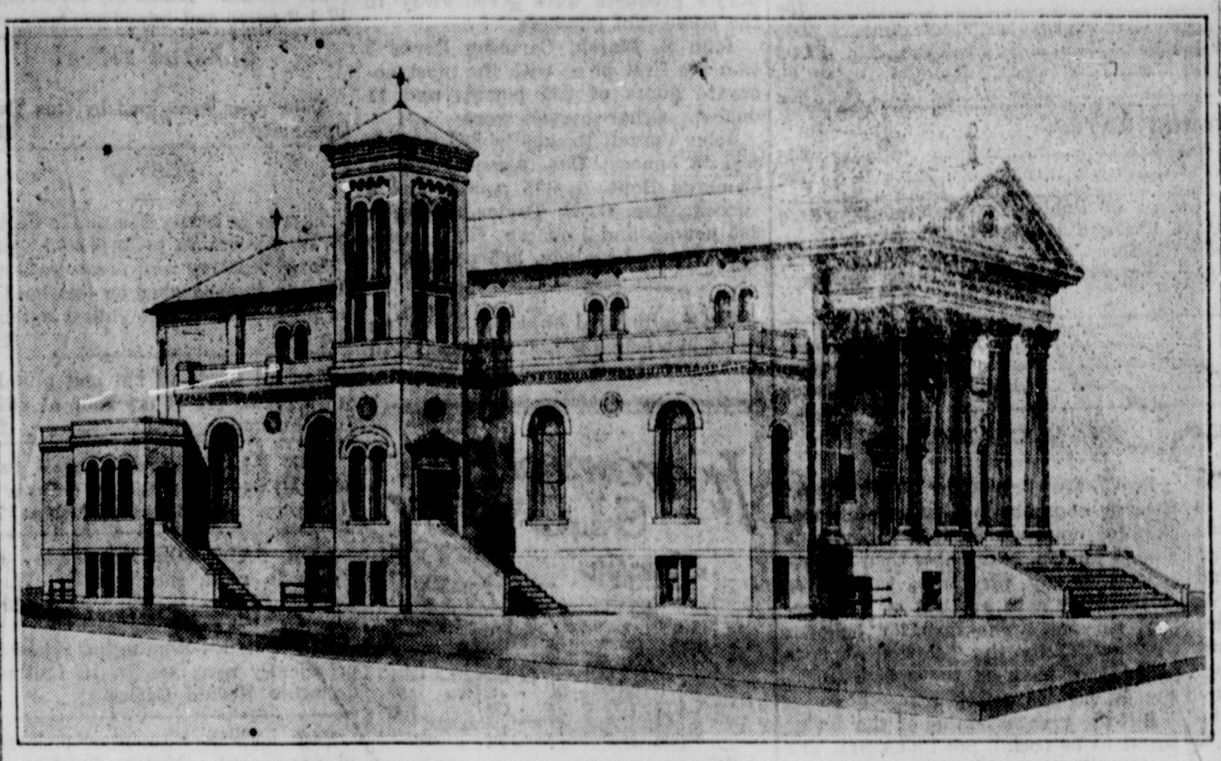
A canvas this morning of the city reveals that in practically every store in the city unprecedented sales are reported with merchants well pleased with the season's business.

Christmas shopping is one of the heaviest buying periods of the year and is considered by many as a test of the condition of the people.

One of the principal reasons, it was pointed out by a prominent local merchandiser this morning, that Cameron enjoys so wide a sale of Christmas goods, is the advertising campaigns that have featured Cameron for many years. This year nearly 7000 display inches of advertising were used in Cameron papers in one issue to promote good will and to sell merchandise.

The people are finding that Cameron is offering greater trade advantages than any other city in this section. The merchants are looking forward to a good year in 1929.

Miss Lora Andrews, who teaches in the Colonial School at Dallas, is spending the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Andrews.



REV. GEO. APEL

As pastor of St. Monica's Church Rev. Apel has had a most successful year, one of the outstanding achievements being the completion of the church. The large outpouring of people for the Christmas service was a tribute to his popular leadership in the parish.

Mr. Nabours is well known, his family being one of the oldest among the people of Milam county and is well qualified for the place.

Mr. McClellen is well known, a veteran of the world war and comes to the office of assessor equipped to give the people an efficient administration.

Miss Lilian Atkinson, one of the most efficient officers to hold that place, has not yet announced her intentions for the future. Miss Woolley who has served with distinction has not announced her plans.

It was said Wednesday that Mrs. Meta McCown, chief clerk in the office of Miss Atkinson and Miss Bessie Dunham would be retained by Mr. Nabours. Mr. McClellen has not announced any appointments.

All officers of the county will take oath on next Tuesday which is the first day of 1929.

90 Gallon Still Is Taken Near Buckholts

A 90 gallon copper still with ten barrels of mash was taken in a raid by Sheriff Blaylock and Deputy Guy Pope south of Buckholts last week. No arrests have been made as no one was found in the neighborhood of the still.

It was said at the office of the sheriff that the still is one of the best ever taken in a liquor raid in this county. It is made of copper and is very expensive.

Rodney Pollard, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Pollard, is ill with chicken pox.

Hundreds Celebrate Mass In Christmas Celebration Here

The beautiful St. Monica's church, pride of the Friendly City, was the scene of a most beautiful celebration on Christmas night with mass at midnight.

The beautiful edifice, brilliantly illuminated, was crowded by a large number of Catholics and non-Catholics as well.

Promptly at midnight the services started. Altar boys, like princes, dressed in red cassocks and white surplus, marched two by two into the sanctuary followed by the esteemed and beloved pastor, Rev. Geo. Apel, dressed in his priestly ornaments of white and gold, who began the mass.

After the first Gospel, Father Apel preached a beautiful sermon on the "Nativity of Our Savior" which was heard by the vast audience with great respect and attention.

The most impressive scene of the celebration was to see so many faithful members going to the Communion Rail and receiving Holy Communion, at least 250 or more.

The choir sang the beautiful Mass of the Blessed Sacrament. Mrs. Rosine Hanel was at the organ, assisted by Earnest Michalka, Otto Zalesky and George Zatz, playing violins.

Rev. Apel thanked them all and expressed the wish that they come again. "You are welcome," he said.

CHRISTMAS CAROLS WAKE SLEEPING CITY

OLD CUSTOM IS REVIVED AS YOUNG SINGERS SPREAD CHRISTMAS CHEER

Thursday evening the night's silence was broken when twenty-five young voices burst forth in song and "Joy to the World" greeted the citizens of Cameron. Curtains went up and faces appeared at the windows and doors, silhouetted against the warm light within.

A sweet girlish voice carried the listeners back to the "Little Town of Bethlehem" where the beautiful star hung over the lowly birthplace of the Savior. Softly "Silent Night, Holy Night" with violin obbligato floated across the night breezes. With a "Merry Christmas" the voices died away and the shadowy forms of the young forms departed to their waiting cars and soon another part of the city was awakened.

Because of the chilling air the Black Pep Union of the intermediate Department of the B. Y. P. U. of the First Baptist church were unable to visit as many of the sick and shut-ins

Dana X. Bible Quits A. & M. Coaching To Direct Nebraska

College Station, Dec. 26—What he believes is an opportunity to advance in his profession has caused Coach X. Bible, dean of southwest conference mentors, to drop the reins at Texas A. & M. college and become athletic director at the University of Nebraska.

Dispatches from Lincoln today announcing aquisition of the veteran Aggie coach, were confirmed by Bible and school athletic authorities. Salary and money matters did not concern Bible in taking the post as Aggie authorities offered to meet the financial advancement offered by the Nebraska school.

In explaining his decision to leave the school he has piloted to a great string of gridiron championships in

QUALITY IS MARK OF SUCCESS FOR MAJESTIC

C. N. GREEN TELLS OF POLICY FOLLOWED IN MAKING OF NOTED RADIO

C. N. Green of the Green Brothers Store who has recently been appointed branch managers for the Majestic Radio set, in telling of the quality of the Majestic said:

"Mr. Grunow of Grigsby-Grunow company, exclusive manufacturers of the Majestic radio once said, "The permanent success of any product is based upon quality.'

"That remark by Mr. Grunow over three years ago has been illustrated in the production and success of Majestic receivers.

Mr. Green then continued with some outstanding facts regarding the monstrous task of supplying the fastest selling radio set on the American market. "It is of interest," said Mr. Green, "to know that in his determination to secure quality Mr. Grunow visualized a system and equipment for testing which engineers claimed so exacting that not over three sets out of a hundred could successfully pass production line with defects.

"For months prior to entering production Mr. Grunow was assembling an organization of engineers who at a later date, like true soldiers, stepped into the ranks as chief inspectors to accomplish the quality necessary to pass those tests and which the public now enjoys.

"As a precaution all raw materials are tested and analyzed by chemists. Steel wire, wax, paper and even lumber (which incidentally a great portion is supplied from Texas mills) is tested for moisture content.

"Special testing apparatus was built with the result their testing equipment alone cost over a million dollars.

"Approximately 6300 factory workers have in excess of 600 inspectors watching them, one inspector for every ten workers. We believe the inspection and testing of the Majestic radio to be the most thorough in the world of radio manufacturers."

Mr. Green concluded with the statement, "Grigsby Grunow company are determined to maintain their position as the manufacturers of the fastest selling radio offered the public in 1929 as they have during the past year. Indications are, the coming year is particularly alluring and present as well as future owners of the Majestic receiver have every reason to believe the Majestic manufacturers are constantly keeping abreast of the times for better radio values in point of price and the latest modern radio features for reception."

NEW ESSEX DISPLAY AT TIRE STORE SATURDAY

LINES CHANGED AND MORE POWER ADDED TO MARVELOUS NEW MOTOR CAR

Saturday at the Tire Store, Horstmann Brothers will present a display of the New Essex cars.

A coupe, coach, sedan and town sedan make up the car load shipment which is due to arrive in the city Friday.

The new Essex is a 70 mile an hour car and comes under the significant title as the Challenger featuring 76 improvements over the last models and said by the dealers here to be the most revolutionary motor departure in the history of the industry.

In addition to the new models the price has been cut with the base price at $695. All models are coming fully equipped and ten more body types in the Hudson-Essex lines are included over the selections of 1928.

Two new body types added to Essex the Challenger, are the town sedan at $850 and the convertible coupe at $895. The Essex base price is $695—with the coach, the 2-passenger coupe and the phaeton all at this figure; coupe with rumble seat is $725. standard sedan $795 and the roadster at $850.

Power Increased

Essex power has been increased 25 per cent and the Hudson power 14 per cent. There is increased torque, or pull, at low speeds which reflects directly on acceleration and gives greater power in hill climbing in both lines. The 1929 Hudson develops 92 horsepower and Essex, the Challenger, 55 horsepower. The former has a speed range up to 85 miles an hour and the latter's top pace is in excess of 70 miles an hour.

Dr. Fosdick and Mr. Kenney are close friends, both being of the same scholarly attainments.

It is sincerely desired here that Dr. Fosdick accept the invitation to address the Dallas audience as it will insure the people here an opportunity to hear him in a Cameron pulpit.

DIFFICULT FOR THE PEDDLER

The peddler is a likeable fellow. He has to be, because his personality is half of the battle in house-to-house selling. He is sincere in his belief that he gives unusual values and "merchandise that your local stores cannot handle." If he weren't sincere, he couldn't sell. But he is usually ignorant, also in merchandising. He does not know that business methods have changed radically in the last generation. He does not know that margins of profit have decreased that buying systems have been revolutionized. He does not know—because he has seldom had retail ownership experience—that the retail store is the most economical method of merchandising in existence.

The peddler doesn't realize that his operations tend to tear down a community rather than build it up—or he doesn't care. He thinks that he is entitled to the privilege of doing business from house-to-house as much as the merchant is entitled to do business in his store or shop. The peddler doesn't stop to think that the reason a great many of those houses exist is due to the merchant being in business in the community, due to his paying taxes for schools and city government and improvements and building, due to his contributions to church and charity and civic welfare. The peddler doesn't realize that the only reason a community becomes available for his house-to-house selling is because money is constantly passing from one hand to another in the continuous round of business life.

The peddler's way is becoming more and more difficult in spite of his pleasing manner and his high-pressure selling talk. While the peddler may remain ignorant of the inefficiency of his merchandising method, his prospective customer—the housewife—is becoming rapidly educated. She knows that all is not gold that glitters. She is skeptical of samples after having paid C. O. D. for something inferior. She knows that the peddler has to get a tremendous profit in order to do business, that he must have a profit just as the retail store must have a profit, that his selling talk about elimination of the middleman, producer-to-consumer," etc., is nothing but sales bunk. And she is becoming more loyal to her community. She realizes that it is a desirable community only in proportion to the degree to which it prospers. She prefers to buy where she can return for any adjustment if anything goes wrong. She is becoming a canny buyer. So the way of the peddler is increasingly hard.

OUR YEAR

When the Romans under Julius Caesar subjugated Egypt they forced Sosigenes, the Egyptian astronomer to reveal the secrets of the calendar preserved by the priests. The Roman calendar then being based on moon month, Julius decided to adopt the Egyptian calendar, but instead of copying its equal twelve thirty-day months and a five-day festival period, he spread the days out to make the first, third, fifth, seventh and ninth months thirty-one days long and made February twenty-nine days long to make six odd-numbered months, because odd numbers were lucky.

The new calendar worked well—so well that the Roman Senate renamed the month in which Julius Caesar was born "Julius."

Then came Augustus. He wanted his birth month to be thirty-one days long so he took the twenty-ninth day of February to make the thirty-first of August. That grouped ninety-three days in the third quarter and only ninety days in the first quarter. Roman property holders objected and asked Augustus to put August 31st back to February, but instead he moved the 31st of September to make the 31st of October and later shifted the 31st of November to make the 31st of December.

That was how the unequal lengths of our months were fixed.

Julius Caesar thinking that the year's length was exactly 365 and one-quarter days, decided to keep the calendar true to each season by inserting a Leap-day every four years.

Night drinking is ruining the drama says St. John Ervine, but why draw the line at the drama?

THE MECHANICAL MAN

Roy J. Wensley of the Westinghouse Electric company has invented a mechanical man, which, it is reported is almost human, being able thru remote control to fly airplanes, sail boats, drive motor cars and act as a household servant. The inventor believes that eventually the Televox, as it is called, can be used to replace workmen in various activities.

But the greatest value of the device ought to be social, not industrial. The aid which it could render husbands who wish to stay out late is obvious. As a substitute at dinner, committee, theatre and booze party engagements contracted in weak moments, the perfected Televox would be a genuine blessing. Since the remarks a person makes on such occasions are wholly mechanical, the conversation of a mechanical man undoubtedly be acceptable.

Science is wonderful. So many human functions are being taken over by machines that it is reasonable to suppose that in time the human race will be superfluous.

Married men, statistics show, are the best auto drivers but their wives won't believe it.

What would be the use of the projected television service to Europe if all we got over the transmitter was a hard look?

One thing we've learned in the last year is that nothing disposes of a Japanese war scare any faster than a couple of indictments.

The COMMUNITY TREE

By MARTHA BANNING THOMAS

THIS is the story they tell in a village by the sea: It was rather a small village, and not a very rich village, and most of the people who lived there were fishermen and their families.

At Christmas time a young girl decided that they must be up to date and have a community tree. It took a deal of talking and wheedling and getting around old people who could see no sense in it. But at last the necessary money was raised all but a few dollars. The young girl decided to go to a cross old captain who was never known to give anything to anybody, except ill-natured replies.

The girl used all her art to persuade him. He said it was a waste of money and electricity and had no sense to it. "I wouldn't give a penny," he growled "not if every man and woman in the town begged me on their knees. Foolishest goins' on ever I heard."

But the young girl was not discouraged. She had set her heart on having the tree. Finally she managed to raise the required amount.

The tree stood straight and tall on a high hill overlooking the sea. It blazed with light and was very beautiful. Everyone admired it except the captain.

Christmas eve there came a sudden storm of wind and snow. But shining through the flakes gleamed the lighted tree. The captain's son, Roger, had gone to the next village on business. On the way home his car broke down. He was compelled to walk. Weary and spent he finally arrived at his home. The captain's face was lined with anxiety.

"Thought ye were lost," he said; "what's been the trouble?"

Roger related his experiences, and then said, "The storm grew so bad that I almost gave up. I could hardly tell where I was. It was hard to walk. Then I saw the Christmas tree . . . and that was the one thing that led me home."

Mrs. John Shipp, 2314 Maple Street, Oklahoma City, Okla., says:

"Two years ago, I was in very bad health. I was so weak and run-down, I could scarcely keep going.

"My mother thought I ought to try Cardui, and told me to get some and take it. I could eat nothing, as I had no appetite.

"I found great relief after I began taking Cardui. I was able to eat and I could sleep. Before that, I had been so nervous that the least little thing upset me. I was low-spirited and blue. I got thinner and thinner, and I was always tired."

Heresy Trial

deposed by Baptist leaders because of his difference with orthodox theology.

An overwhelming majority of the members of the local church have sustained Mr. Kenney in the controversy and are opposed to the proceedings at Temple, it was said this morning.

Mr. Kenney, it is said, has sought at all times to give an interpretation of Christian principles so as to benefit men who live in this modern age, declaring that conditions have changed from those obtaining five or six centuries ago. He believes in the Golden Rule, "Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so to them, for this is the law and the prophets," and has preached much from this philosophy.

Before accepting a call to the Cameron church Mr. Kenney was pastor of the church of John W. Davis in West Virginia. Mr. Davis who was candidate for president on the Democratic ticket in 1924, wrote a letter here commending Mr. Kenney to the local congregation.

Friends of Mr. Kenney, members of his church and people at large in the community, have been surprised to note the progress of opposition in the Presbytery. Heresy trials have not been frequent in this country since the days of religious persecution when men were burned at the stake and driven from civilization for thinking.

The following is a copy of the letter from Mr. McMurry:

Dec. 26, 1928.

Rev. H. G. Kenney,
Cameron, Texas,
Dear Mr. Kenney:

"I am hereby transmitting to you the summons ordered by the Presbytery of Central Texas that you meet the Presbytery at the First Presbyterian church, Temple, Texas, on January 8, 1929 at 11 a. m., to answer whatever the Presbytery may ask touching certain statements alleged to have been made by you in certain sermons and addresses delivered by you since being received into the Presbytery of Central Texas, and touching any matters connected with your pastorate of the First Presbyterian church of Cameron, Texas.

"Please be kind enough to acknowledge this summons.

Yours cordially,
Stonewall J. McMurry,
Stated Clerk of the Presbytery of Central Texas.

Dana Bible

the last 13 years, the diminutive 38-year-old mentor said:

"I do so because I feel that I am offered a greater opportunity to advance in my profession. I realize that while I gain in a football way, I will suffer a separation from many friendships that have matured during my years at A. & M. I could have had no finer co-operation than that given me by A. & M. authorities, students and ex-students. The efforts at meeting the offer have made it doubly hard for me to leave."

Lincoln Neb., Dec. 26—Coach ana X. Bible of the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College, has been signed as head football coach of the University of Nebraska the athletic board of the University revealed today. He succeeds Coach Ernest E. Bearg whose contract expires next year.

The board stated Bible accepted its offer of a three year contract yesterday. Choice of Bible was recommended by the selection committee composed of H. D. Gish, athletic director; Clarence E. Swanson, alumni representative and Prof. T. J. Thompson, dean of student affairs at the university. The recommendation was passed favorably by the athletic board and approved by university officials.

Coach Bible has been at Texas A. and M. for the last 11 years. During that period his teams have won the southwest conference title five times. He is recognized as one of the leading gridiron mentors in national college circles.

The Texas Aggie teams have been noted for their skillful mixing of a well-groomed aerial attack, deception and power.

The new Cornhusker coach also will bring to Nebraska many valuable connections, the board said. Bible has been a member of the national football rules committee since 1922, has had an active part in the national coaches association and has many other connections which have served to keep him in the front among the nation's leading grid mentors.

Christmas Carols

as had been planned but it was the earnest wish of these young people that those visited would be a little more happy because of their songs. They plan to make this a yearly custom so next year, your home may be visited.

Caroling is a quaint Christmas custom the world over and a very lovely way of spreading cheer. Wouldn't it be grand if each of us would each year go caroling every day for a whole week before Christmas. It costs so little and means so much and soon we would find everyone in a more unselfish frame of mind. We would have a "Love in our hearts so great that self is forgotten." Then Christmas would mean "Joy to the World." Then we would all pause in our hurried thoughtless lives and think of "Him" who brought joy into the world. Then we would not "have ears that hear not the joyful message that a Son is born, a Son begotten of God that whosoever believeth on Him shall not perish but have eternal life.

After the caroling the young people returned to the church where the adult Union had a warm fire burning and a beautiful Christmas tree with little gifts for all. The Primary Union furnished the program, because of sickness there were not so many little folks, but little Johnnie May Hayes did her best and at 9:30 the happy crowd disbanded.—Contributed.

Elizabeth Mangum Is Hostess to Friends With Xmas Party

I'm sending this invitation hearty
To ask you to come to my Christmas party
December 22 is the date
Three o'clock the time
And don't be late.
And when at my door you come a'knocking
Just follow the trail of the Little Red Stocking.

In response to the above invitation written on paper cut in shape of a little red stocking and received in the mail, twenty-four friends of Elizabeth Mangum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Mangum, gathered at her home Saturday afternoon for a Christmas party. To their delight, they were greeted at the door by a live Santa Claus, who directed them to the trail of the little red stocking, which they were to follow. This led them over all the house on a mystery jaunt, finally ending in the dining room. Here they found a beautifully decorated table with red tapers and holly as a center piece. Places were laid for everyone and they were served Christmas cakes and ice cream molded in the shape of Santa Clauses. In order to have a lasting memory of the occasion, the hostess had a photographer come and take pictures of the table and also of the tree with the guests gathered about.

Favors from the tree were given each one, horns for the boys and music boxes for the girls. They enjoyed games out of doors and were then served Christmas candies.

Response to Airport Project Encouraging Reports to Paper Show

In the Christmas edition of The Herald last week an article by the editor pointing out the needs for an air terminal to advance the transportation needs of the community, has found an encouraging response from many people in this community.

It is likely that some definite action can be taken on this proposition in the near future.

Two plans have been advanced. One is for the enlistment of private interest and the other is for the city to take a lease on acreage near the city for a number of years to insure a landing field.

It is pointed out that if individuals can be induced to establish the field, considerable returns will come in thru sale of fuel and housing facilities for aircraft.

The establishment of an airport here will be one of the major demands of the New Year.

That's how it is without Delco-Light.

Now, suppose you have Delco-Light on your farm. As you go through the kitchen, you snap on a switch. Zip! Every corner of your barn is flooded with electric light—light that can't upset and set the whole place on fire.

If Delco-Light didn't give you anything but light, you'd be getting your money's worth. And it does so many more things that we can't tell you about 'em all in this ad. But we'd like to see you one of these days and talk it over.

A YEAR OF GREAT PROMISE

By THE EDITOR

On the threshold of a New Year, some folks lament the lack of divination or prophecy the better they might know what the future has in store for them.

Foolish folks they are, indeed. Under the Great Scheme of Existence nothing seems more correct than that mankind should not know the future as he can know the past.

The pleasant things might be pleasant to know in advance and so afford the satisfaction that goes with anticipation, but how about the unpleasant things? What of the sorrow, tragedy, failure and gloom that must inevitably be part of the bequests of 1929. To have advance knowledge of them, if by that knowledge they could be avoided, would be most helpful, but if they are inevitable and inescapable, then would come only that anguish that is the portion of the murderer who sits in his cell awaiting the day of execution.

And so it is best to look out into the unknown reaches of the New Year with as much complacency as possible, determined to lead a good life, to play the game squarely, to be as ready as possible for any emergency, to live without regret, to plan, safeguard and provide wisely.

Under the right slant of life every year can be a good year. There may be sorrow and grief and set-back, but all these need not condemn the year or cast one down hopelessly. There is always that homely, almost frivolous philosophy that no matter how bad a thing may be it could be worse. There is always a silver lining to a dark cloud if it is sought earnestly enough.

Happily people today and least of all the American people are not looking at 1929 through melancholy eyes. To every person save the neurasthenic the New Year is abloom with promise and aglow with great achievement. And so it can be made if everybody maintains that mental attitude.

The year 1928 could have been much worse in business, in industry, in disasters, in climate. Naturally 1929 is expected to be better. It can profit from errors of 1928. It is blazing a new trail, but it has the markers of 1928 to guide it. It is not scarred or prejudiced. Like the robust infant it is pictured to be, 1929 starts with a fine spirit of optimism and all who are traveling with it ought to be just as sanguine of a Happy New Year.

CASEY JONES GETS HIS DAY IN COURT; TRUE STORY OF REAL HUMAN CHARACTER IS RELATED

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 7.—Casey Jones the most famous railroad engineer the world ever produced, is going to have his day in court at last.

To most Americans Casey Jones is just a name out of a once-popular song—but there really was a Casey Jones, once. He died, like a hero in a railroad wreck 28 years ago; and his widow has brought suit for $150000 against a Hollywood moving picture company for alleged exploitation of photos of her and her child in connection with a movie that has been built around the famous exploit of her dead husband.

McAdoo Is Her Lawyer

Eminent counsel will represent the widow. Earl Brewer, former governor of Mississippi, who will direct the fight to protect Mrs. Jones from unwelcome publicity, has announced that William Gibbs McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury has been retained by her.

The filing of the suit has brought to light for the first time the real facts about Casey Jones, his exploit and the song that gave him a kind of immortality.

His real name was John Luther Jones. He was called Casey because he came from the town of Cayce, Fulton county, Kentucky. He was 37 at the time of his death, and had been an engineer on the Illinois Central railroad for a number of years.

For a decade Casey had run freight and passenger trains between Jackson Tenn., and Water Valley, Miss. Everybody living along the line knew him by hear-say if not personally. He had a peculiar way of blowing the whistle of his locomotive—a long, wailing whistle, something like the magnified cry of a whippoorwill.

Casey's Last Trip

As the song—surely you remember it—said:

All the switchmen knew, by the engine's moans,
That the man at the throttle was Casey Jones.

It was a Sunday night in the spring of 1900—April 29, to be exact—that Casey Jones made his last trip. He had just come into Memphis off his run from Canton, when he learned that a close friend, engineer on the crack "Cannonball" express to the south, was sick.

"I'll take his run for him" said Casey. So, with his fireman, Slim Webb, Casey got into the cab at 11 that night and began that immortal ride.

Down through the South Memphis yards they went in the cab of "old 638" hauling a load of Pullmans. Slim Webb was kept busy stoking the fire—Casey's patented whistles were know nto the firemen as "steam wasters' and the firemen who traveled with him had to keep right on the job. Fifty miles out of Memphis they were delayed by a broken down freight train, and they were 30 minutes late when they resumed their journey.

Like all engineers, Casey hated to be behind time. He "opened her up" and the train slid along the rails at better than a mile-a-minute.

The Fatal Wreck

Just before you get to Vaughn, Miss., there is a long curve with a siding where freight trains wait for the express to go by. Two freights were on this siding. One of them hadn't gotten completely off the main track. The night was foggy and the engine went rocking around the curve.

Then, a scant hundred yards away, Casey saw the tail end of the freight train on the track ahead of him. With a wild yell he jammed in the brakes, calling to Webb "Jump Slim, and save yourself."

Webb jumped and escaped unhurt. Casey's locomotive, brakes screeching, plowed into the freight train. Jamming the airbrake lever tightly, Casey Jones stuck to his post and died. But his fidelity to duty saved his pasengers. In the last few seconds he had slowed the train's speed enough so that he was the only person killed.

The railroaders took his death hard. In the Jackson roundhouse were two colored engine wipers who grieved especially hard. These two men were Wallace Saunders and Ike Wentworth. As days went by they strung together a sort of chant about Casey and his last ride, and in a few months this chant was common property among railroaders.

Song Is Written

Then, one day, a professional song writer happened to visit Memphis. He heard the song twisted it about and polished it up—and made a fortune. Ten million copies of "Casey Jones" have been sold, not to mention countless phonograph records and piano rolls.

For 10 years Mrs. Jones was unable to escape from it. Everywhere she went she heard it. If she entered a theater, the orchestra was sure to strike it up as a supposed compliment to her. She tried to have it suppressed.

Mrs. Jones, born Janie Brady, married Casey in Jackson, Tenn., in 1886. On the morning of Casey's death she had gotten the children off to school and was busy about the house when a neighbor called her to her back fence.

"I knew by the expression on her face that something had happened," says Mrs. Jones. "I felt that Casey had had an accident. "I want to tell you about your husband," the neighbor began. Then she faltered. I said, "Go ahead. Tell me—is he dead?" The neighbor woman just sobbed and nodded her head."

For many years the whole nation hummed, whistled and sang "Casey Jones." But probably not one person in a thousand dreamed that there really had been a Casey Jones. The present lawsuit will prove enlightening.

"I want the world to know that this song was about a very real man, a loving husband, a kind father and a good friend," says the widow.

Yes, Casey Jones really lived. And because two colored engine wipers tried to string together words to express their grief at his passing, he became, in his death, the most famous engineer that ever lived.

Casey Jones—
Mounted to his cabin
Casey Jones—
With his orders in his hand
Casey Jones—
Mounted to the cabin
And he took his farewell trip into the promised land.

Editor's Note—The above story is probably the first one telling the true facts of the genesis of the famous song, "Casey Jones," Although local railroaders have always known them. The little yarn should have an especial interest in these parts, since "Cayce" Jones was well known here, having run freight and passenger trains on the Paducah division of the Illinois Central before they were transferred to the main line. There is also a legend to the effect that the engine wiper, Wallace Saunders, was a Paducah negro.

Christmas Again

It seems but a few days since last Christmas, but here it is again and it makes us, as it must make many others, regret that I have done so few really worth while things in the past year. One day hastens right after another, each filled with good resolutions, but each ending with little undertaken or accomplished. Of course most of us have taken a few forward steps during the year, if we have had the least possible conception of life's meaning, but very few have done what could have been done with rightly directed application. At any rate the year has gone and it is up to each of us to apply its lesson in such a way that the next year may find us full of faith and the energy to use it in a way to help make the world a little better place in which to live.

Oil Builds Texas

Much of the progress of Texas the past year has been due to the unusual oil development in many scattered sections of the State. Oil operators with unbounded faith in the industry have given profitable employment to thousands of laborers. They have spent their money almost lavishly and while many of them have grown wealthy thru their faith and efforts, perhaps their greatest good to the country has been in the employment they have given to others and the money they have so freely spent. Texas owes much to those engaged in this business and the people should give them all the assistance and encouragement possible.

Building Roadways

The announcement is made that the Yates interests when the permission of the Interstate Commerce Commission is obtained, will build a railroad from Rankin on the Orient railroad to the center of the Yates oil pool in Pecos county. This will be another feeder for the Santa Fe system and will result in much development of every kind in that part of West Texas. It should also stimulate the promoters of the railway from Corpus Christi to San Angelo to greater activity. Oil interests in that part of the State, as well as in other sections, have also been the direct cause of much building of good highways to take the place of the old cattle trails that will soon be a thing of the past.

Public Health Campaign

Doctors at Brownwood have started a campaign for better public health and have enlisted the support of the civic clubs. When it is considered that administering to the ills of the public has always been the source of revenue for physicians, the philanthropic work in which they are everywhere engaged is all the more commendable. Is there any other class, professional or business, that will work diligently year after year, to bring about conditions that will result in lessening the demand for its services? There is not. Yet that is just what many individual physicians have been doing all their lives and in which they may now expect greater results since they are organizing for co-operative efforts.

County Libraries

Now that good roads are being extended to almost every section of the State, more attention should be paid to the establishment and maintenance of county libraries. The State Library has accomplished something along that line in the past few years, but has only made a beginning. Right now three fourths of the counties of Texas should have creditable county libraries, though there are as yet but few. If our good roads do not result in the improvement of the intellectual, moral and social life of the people, they will not accomplish what they should. Books are the tools thru which much of this improvement can be brought about.

Texas Insurance Increases

The report of the insurance commissioner of Texas shows that Texans last year paid out $145,000,000 for life insurance. an increase of $15,000,000 over the previous year. This does not merely show that the companies operating in Texas have been increasingly active, but it indicates that the people of the State are prosperous or they could not afford to invest so much in insurance, for after all life insurance is merely a form of long-time investment.

Mexico Celebrates

The railroad celebration at Ojinaga, Mexico, the other day because of the completion of the Mexican division of the Orient railroad to the Mexican border was something of more than local or even national significance.. It marked a forward step both for Mexico and that large section of this country known as Southwest Texas. The participation of Alpine, Marfa, Presidio and other young Texas cities in the event shows that they are keenly awake as to the importance of this Mexican connection which eventually will mean a shorter route to the Pacific coast.

Many Road Laws Proposed

Governor Moody suggested a committee of one from each senatorial district of Texas to smooth out the differences of opinion that might exist and have an agreed road law ready for the next legislature. His hopes as to the "smoothing out" process have not been realized and they will not be. Almost every Texan has a separate opinion as to the best road system, and for that reason many views were presented to the Moody committee. All agree that the road laws need amending, but few are in accord as to the best thing to do. The matter will be fought out in tedious detail before the legislature.

County Agents

Over 600 names from 18 rural communities were presented recently to the Cherokee county commissioners' court asking for the appointment of a county home demonstration agent. Just why some counties are indifferent about employing county farm and home demonstration agents is hard to see. If they know their business they are worth far more to any county than the small salaries they receive Agriculture and country home life made very little progress in Texas until these agents begun their work among the people.

Gas Station Swindlers

The president of the Texas Automobile Association, basing his statement of the findings of State officials, says that Texans are being swindled out of more than $3,000,000 annually by short measure at gasoline and oil filling stations. If so, there are some dealers at least should be forever barred from dealing in gasoline or any other products requireing measurements or weights. Such a law would doubtless greatly decrease this form of petty theft. It would no doubt prove more effective than fines and imprisonment.

Senators From Texas

MATTHIAS WARD
(1858-1859)

Matthias Ward was born in Elbert County, Georgia, in about the year 1800. When a child he moved with his parents to Madison County, Alabama. He received a classical education, taught school for about two years, and later studied law. In 1836 he became a citizen of Texas, serving as a member of the Texas Congress for several years.

Upon the admission of Texas to the Union in 1845, Mr. Ward was elected as a member of the upper house of the Texas legislature. In 1851 he was a candidate for Lieutenant-Governor with J. W. Henderson, Charles J. Kennan and J. S. Gillett. Henderson was elected, Ward receiving the second largest vote.

Mr. Ward was a delegate to the national Democratic conventions of 1852 and 1856, and in 1856 served as president of the convention. He thus participated in the nomination of Franklin Pierce and James Buchanan for the Presidency of the United States.

In 1855, Mr. Ward was nominated by a convention as a candidate for Congress, but he was put forward by the Democrats of the strict constructionists class. He was defeated by Judge Lemuel D. Evans, the favored candidate of what was known as the Know Nothing Party, who had been a candidate for governor against Governor Pease in 1853.

In 1858 Mr. Ward was appointed by Governor Runnels as a States Rights Democrat to fill the vacancy created in the United States Senate by the death of Senator J. Pinckney Henderson and took his seat on September 27, 1858. He served until December 5, 1859, when he was succeeded by Lewis T. Wigfall, who had in the meantime been elected by the Texas legislature.

Senator Ward ardently supported the bill providing for the establishment of the Pacific Railway from some point on the Mississippi or the Missouri River, to the Bay of San Francisco, which was to "carry population over the continent, carry the light of Christian civilizatiozn to the shores of the Pacific, develop the power and wealth of the Republic, and bind together by ties of interest as well as affection, the people who were thereafter to dwell on the Atlantic and Pacific slopes of the Rocky Mountains." He made several very able speeches in the Senate in which he forcibly discussed the advantages and urged the authorization and speedy construction of that great railway system.

Senator Ward's service in the United States Senate was of short duration, but the record of the proceedings of that body shows that he was a fearless, conscientious and capable representative.

According to the official congressional records at Washington Senator Ward died near Jefferson, in Marion County, Texas, on October 13, 1861.

Rosebud Orpheus Club Entertains In Rosebud Friday

The Junior Orpheus Club of Rosebud entertained the Treble Clef Club of Cameron Friday afternoon in Rosebud at the home of Mrs. Earl Blasienz. About twenty members of the Cameron Club and their sponsor, Miss Bess DuBois, enjoyed the hospitality. It is an annual custom for the clubs to entertain each other; the Rosebud organization were guests of the Treble Clef Club last year.

Another custom is for the visiting club to furnish the program, which on Friday was as follows:

Violin duet, Gladys Jewel Copus and Julia Mae McCollum.

Piano solo, Gladys Davis.

Pianologue, Geraldine Slaughter.

Piano duet, Lois and Ruby Robbins.

Dance, Katherine White and Velma Newton.

Vocal duet, Florence Atkinson and Inez Evans.

Medley of popular pieces, Arnette Ryan.

Vocal solo, Inez Evans.

Pianologue, Sue Ella Tyson.

At the conclusion of the program the guests were served a salad plate and hot tea. At this time the young daughter of Mrs. Blasienz gave a piano selection and Ernestine Green, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Green, entertained with readings. Dancing and conversation were enjoyed until time for departure.

An advertisement is reported by the New York World: "Comfortable bedroom, Smith elected $3, Hoover $5.55. That's the way with those New Yorkers—always trying to make G. O. P. prosperity look bad.

Party Is Given For Wedding Attendants

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Bragg entertained at dinner Friday evening, the guests being the attendants in the Bragg-Barmore wedding party. Christmas decorations prevailed in the living room and the dining room, where the center piece for the table was a low bowl of holly.

A four course dinner was served, in which the Christmas motif was further carried out. A pretty feature was the ice dessert folded in the shape of Santa Clauses. After the dinner the party rehearsed the wedding at the First Baptist church.

Poinsetta place cards and nut cups combined bore the following names: Misses Earl and Nadine Bragg, Miss Helen Flinn and Miss Grace Mangum; Messrs. Gaston, Cecil and Clifton Barmore and Albert Collins.

Friendly Bible Class Holds Meeting For Monthly Business

Members of the Friendly Bible Class of the Methodist church enjoyed their regular monthly business meeting and social at the home of Mrs. R. J. Long Friday afternoon.

After all necessary business had been attended to, a Christmas tree was found to hold gifts for all those present, and these were distributed by Mrs. J. M. Bowman. For the past two months the class had "Friendship Sisters." These were revealed at this time and there was a gift for each one of them on the tree. The gifts for the poor were also taken. Miss Foldine Rylander entertained the guests with several Christmas readings.

Mrs. Long, assisted by Misses Foldine Rylander, Billy Gaither and Allene Owen, served coffee, cake and candy.

Mrs. Bob Terry has been elected president of the class to succeed Mrs. Alex Triggs who resigned recently.

Club Members Enjoy Dance With Music by New York Orchestra

The annual Christmas dance for members of the Cameron Country Club and their guests was held Tuesday evening from nine until one o'clock. Music was by Dewey Wright and his Arabians, a ten piece orchestra fromr New York. Many people from surrounding towns were present.

A committee of ladies from the club members had charge of decorations which were in Christmas colors. Red and green rope, Christmas icicles, cedar and colored lights were used in the rooms. The mantle presented an eastern scene depicting camels slowly descending a mountainside, while the roofs of the buildings in the distant village could just be seen in the darkness, as stars and a crescent moon shone overhead.

Sweeping Changes Made and Price Cuts by Hudson-Essex

Essex a 70-mile an hour car; Hudson more than an 80-mile an hour car; roomier and beautified body designs; much added equipment and price reductions of $50 to $200 a car, are the features of the Hudson-Essex program for 1929 as announced today. The company's statement, marking its 20th anniversary, declares it will build nearly as many cars in the first half of 1929 as in all of 1928—which was the biggest year in its history.

In 1929 Hudson with 64 improvements and the new Essex, the Challenger with 76 go on display at Horstmann Brothers Tire Store, Hudson-Essex dealers, as part of a nation-wide program of simultaneous display. Pre-showings of the new Hudson-Est sex lines have been made to newspapermen, technical exparts, distributors and dealers in key points thruout the United States and Canada. For the past month the Hudson factories in Detroit have been working day and night shifts, to provide show cars and sufficient dealer stocks to assure immediate delivery.

Twenty-one body types are included in the new combined line, ten more than in 1928, comprising the greatest variety Hudson has ever offered. Essex prices start at $695, Hudson prices at $1095. The Hudson is now presented on two increased wheel bases of 122 and 139 inches while the Essex wheel base remains unchanged.

Principal Essex improvements include four hydrolic shock absorbers a sstandard equipment, chromium plate, larger, roomier bodies and a larger more powerful motor.

New Body Types

The six bodies which have been added in the 1929 Hudson line are the town sedan at $1375; convertable coupe at $1450; the 5-passenger standard phaeton at $1350; 5-passenger sport sedan at $1850; and 7-passenger limousine at $2100; the sport phaeton to be priced later. The first three have wheel bases of 122 inches while the last three are on 139 inch weel bases.

The models which comprised the line last year and have all chassis improvements and redesigned bodies are the coach at $1095. the standard sedan at $1175; the coupe at $1195; the roadster at $1250; the landau sedan at $1500; the victoria at $1500; 7-passenger phaeton, price to come later; and the 7-passenger sedan at $2000. All of these with the exception of the last two named are on 122 inch wheel bases; these have wheel bases of 139 inches.

Two new body types added to Essex the Challenger, are the town sedan at $850 and the convertible coupe at $895. The Essex base price is $695—with the coach, the 2-passenger coupe and the phaeton all at this figure; coupe with rumble seat is $725. standard sedan $795 and the roadster at $850.

Power Increased

Essex power has been increased 25 per cent and the Hudson power 14 per cent. There is increased torque, or pull at low speeds which reflects directly on acceleration and gives greater power in hill climbing in both lines. The 1929 Hudson develops 92 horsepower and Essex, the Challenge, 55 horsepower. The former has a speed range up to 85 miles an hour and the latter's top pace is in excess of 70 miles an hour.

In both cars, a "moose horn" manifold equalizes the distribution of vaporized gasoline to the cylinders, re? sulting in balanced energy and more efficiency from every cylinder. Spark plugs are located over the exhaust valves, a new departure. Complete combustion is assured by raising the gasoline almost to the point of combustion by passing it over the hottest spot in the motor before firing. An automatic priming device assures engine operation in any temperature. On the vacuum tank is an exclusive "booster" attachment which assures an adequate and even supply of fuel to the motor.

"Cushioned" Power

Vibration in both cars is greatly minimized through elaboration of the patented Super-Sx principle. A "cushioned" flow of power in Hudson lines is obtained through a Lancaster-type dampner and a clutch which uses a series of small spiral springs. An uninterrupted oil film over the entire surface of crankshaft and connecting rod bearings is obtained through a newly adopted bearing design for both.

In addition to vital engine changes 140 improvements in both lines include a multitude of refinements one of which being an electrically controlled oil and gasoline indicator gauge on the instrument panel. The body developments are thorough-going from sound-cushioning insulation to distictive hardware finished in chased silver, the motif being the pne cone n standard Hudson and Essex models and wld rose in special Hudsons. Upholstery in all models is of the finest quality—broadcloth an dmohair in the Hudsons, mohair and velour in the Essex cars.

A special. exclusive and patented composition impervious to water, is used for lining the four wheel brakes. Brake action is exceptionally positive but without grabbing. Hydrolc shock absorbers are on all models of both lines.

The Hudson hood is made higher and wider, the radiator shell, lamps; cowl lamp band and other bright work are chromium plated. Radiator shutters are standard on all models of the Hudson and Essex lines. The Essex Challenger radiator has been heightened, widened and lengthened and the radiator an hood are slightly peaked. Radiator caps are snug fitting and faceted in semi-modernistic design to math the hub caps.

The wheels are sturdy ten spoke wood with a bold assurance of unusual strength. Right fender wells are standard, and on the Greater Hudson, all visible chassis parts are lacquered in the dominant body color. In all bodies the construction allows advantageous use of stream line mouldings that sweep back from the radiator. The mass effect of each body style has been freely carried out by the designers.

Hudson windshields are of non-shattering glass. Control pedals on all cars have been widened. Steering wheels are adjustable to height and the seats can be moved forward or back and up or down through the use of adjusting screws, which are operated by the occupants of the car. Hudson interiors have been widened an average of four inches, Essex three inches and all bodies appreciably lengthened.

REGISTER YOUR CAR

Only a few days remain for you to register your car. This office is ready with its service to register your car during the remaining days of December.

For the information of car owners we respectfully call attention to the fact that no car can be legally registered except in the county of the residence of the owner. Car owners residing near the county line should not register in another county.

The state law makers were wise in this provision as December 1 makes it possible for autos to be registered at a time when other tax payments are slack. In the latter part of December the time is too limited to delay.

Cars cannot be operated legally aftr January 1, 1929 if not found to have a new license plate.

The office of the Tax Collector is now ready to serve the people of the county in this important matter and we welcome them. Early registration will enable the office to give better service and satisfaction to you because you will have the important matter over with.

Be sure to bring with you a headlight certificate as this must accompany all applications for registration.

All applications for license plates to be sent by mail must be accompanied by postage, 9c being required for each set of plates.

HISTORY CLUB THANKS PEOPLE FOR SEAL FUND

MRS. J. P. LOVE WRITES APPRECIATION FOR SALE OF CHRISTMAS SEALS

Gratitude and appreciation are uppermost in the minds of the Christmas Seal local committee, as the sale closes with proceeds amounting to $212.33.

The co-operation of individuals, organizations, business and professional people in this sale as outlined by the National Tuberculosis Association, has brought results that will count in the nation's fight to bring health to our people. It is interesting to note that part of this fund given locally is used in Texas, while a part is devoted to the national work.

We are informed that a good percentage of Christmas Seal proceeds is retained for county health work where there are County Health Associations conducting the Christmas Seal sale.

Your local committee earnestly hopes that this much needed help may be obtained for Milam County in future years.

The Cameron History Club, having sponsored the 1928 sale of Christmas Seals in Cameron desires to express deep appreciation to each individual whose help in service or funds has contributed to the proceeds to the Texas Public Health Association.

We would gladly thank each individually but that being impossible, we can but mention the valued assistance of the local press, the motion picture management, the Business and Professional Women's Club, The Daughters of the American Revolution, The Music Club, The Delphian Chapter and members of the faculty of our five Cameron schools.

Gratefully,
CAMERON HISTORY CLUB,
Emelene P. Love, Pres.

Fordor Sedan New Ford DeLuxe of All The Models

The Fordor Sedan is the de luxe car of the new Ford passenger car line and has many features that are new and exclusive in low priced cars.

It is distinctive from the other Ford passenger cars in exterior appearance. The cowl sweeps down in a graceful curve from a raised panel at the windshield to a narrow felt moulding which runs from the front of the hood on a straight line back and around the car. This gives the body a long, low effect.

Another feature that adds much to the exterior appearance is the roll belt effect below the windows, which rolls down to the narrow moulding. The top and rear quarter have rounded corners and are covered with a pyroxylin coated material of a tan shade, in pleasing contrast with the body colors. There is a ventilator in the lower panel of the cowl on the left side, for greater driving comfort.

The interior of the car has a strikingly rich and inviting appearance. The trimming s of light brown effect with deeply cushioned seats upholstered in soft brown hearline cloth, a highly effective combination. The cushions are of the lounge style with overstuffed plain panels. Arm rests in the rear compartment are another convenience. Seats in both compartments are deeply cushioned, wide and most comfortable. The attractiveness of the interior is further enhanced by the use of embossed panelling on the doors and around the ends of the seat in the front compartment. This is a decidedly distinctive touch, such as might be expected only in custom built bodies. An oval bowl light in the sea rcompartment and a flexible robe rail are other pleasing and serviceable features. The hardware is all nickeled in a conservative style of scroll effect and is all of uniform design in harmony with other nterior trimmng.

New Refrigerator Is Operated by Oil At Cost of 2c Per Day

The Superfex, new iceless refrigerator that operates for 2c per day with kerosene oil is now on display at the Milam County Hardware Company. An announcement will be found in this issue. The stove is manufactured by the Perfection Oil Stove Company.

In discussing the new refrigerator Mr. Davis said:

"Now, for the first time, with the invention of the marvelous Superfex Oil-Burning Refrigerator, you can enjoy modern refrigeration in your home central electric power and other conveniences.

"With this modern refrigerator you can keep your foods always cold and fresh and in the prevention of spoilage it is both an economy and a safeguard of health. It freezes ice cubes too.

"The Superfex turns the heat from a pint of kerosene—costing two cents—into 24 hours of effective refrigeration. Once a day you "light it and leave it." No further attention is required. The burners do the work silently, in about an hour and a quarter, and go out automatically, but the refrigeration goes on. There are no moving parts no valves—nothing to get out of order. The only outside connection needed is with the cold water supply pipe. The cooling water, however, need be used only during the short heating period."

ALBERT TRIGGS AND MISS LOIS MAYS ARE MARRIED HERE SUNDAY UNITING TWO OLD AND PROMINENT FAMILIES

Of interest to a wide circle of friends of both families will be the announcement of the marriage of Albert Triggs Jr., and Miss Lois Mays of Maysfield Sunday morning at the Presbyterian manse, Rev. Kenney officiating. They left immediately after the ceremony for Mineola to spend the Christmas holidays with the groom's parents.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. R. B. Mays of Maysfield, her father having died a few years ago. She graduated from Yoe High school, and it was during their school days that the romance began.

The groom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Triggs of Mineola, was born and readed in Cameron, his parents having moved away only about two years ago. He also graduated from Yoe High school. He is manager of the Texas Service Station and is a sterling young business man of Cameron.

They are expected to return to Cameron Saturday and will make their home here.

MISS EARL BRAGG BECOMES BRIDE OF MR. GASTON BARMORE IN IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY HERE SATURDAY DEC. 22

In a simple, but sweet and impressive ceremony, Miss Earl Bragg and Mr. Gaston Barmore were married Saturday morning at nine o'clock at the First Presbyterian church, with Rev. E. S. Hutcherson reading the ritual.

The altar was a mass of ferns and smilax, interspersed with tall wicker floor baskets filled with mammoth yellow chrysanthemums and Boston fern. Autumnal colors were also used in the gowns and arm bouquets of the attendants.

Immediately after Mr. Hutcherson took his place at the altar, the wedding party entered to the strains of Lohrengren's wedding march played by Miss Helen Flinn, who wore beige georgette with accessories in harmony and carried a corsage of yellow chrysanthemums.

Ushers were Messrs. Cecil and Clifford Barmore, brothers of the groom. The maid-of-honor, Miss Nadine Bragg, sister of the bride, and the bridesmaid, Miss Grace Mangum, entered together. Both wore afternoon gowns of flat crepe in shades of brown with hat and shoes to match and carried arm bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums.

The bride entered on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. Her gown was of independence blue flat crepe and she wore accessories in a darker shade of blue. The bridal bouquet was of pink rosebuds with streamers of pink ribbon. The groom with his best man, Albert Collins, met them at the altar, and the beautiful ring ceremony was performed, while the air of "Oh, Promise Me" was played softly.

This marriage united two old and prominent Cameron families. The bride is the daughter of J. S. Bragg, who for a number of years has been associated with the Robert McLane Wholesale Grocery Co. She was born in Elgin but her parents moved to Cameron when she was young. After graduating from high school, she entered Baylor University, from which she was graduated with an AB degree. She has also studied at the University of Colorado and at George Peabody's Teachers' College at Nashville, Tenn. For the past three years she has been a member of the faculty at the Ada Henderson school, where she plans to continue her work until the end of the current school year.

The groom is one of the young business men of Cameron, being owner of the Model Auto Paint Shop. After graduating from high school in Cameron he attended State University for a while and then entered Tyler Commercial College, where he finished a business course.

Mr. and Mrs. Barmore left after the wedding for San Antonio, where they stayed until Tuesday. For the next six months they will be at home with the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Bragg.

Miss Esther McLerran Will Wed Ted Kuehl

Naming as honoree Miss Esther McLerran, whose marriage to Ted Kuehl will be an event of the near future, Mrs. W. E. Kuehl entertained Thursday evening at 7:30 with a miscellaneous shower. After an hour had been spent hearing and telling reminiscenses, the honor guest was told to find the end of a twine string which was wound through all the house. The search ended in the dining room, where she found numerous gifts for her under the Christmas tree.

The guests were served sandwiches, hot chocolate and candy. Plate favors were tiny capsules containing the fortunes of those present.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

The Home Economics Club was entertained Thursday afternoon by Miss Althea Dickens. After enjoying games the members were each given a gift from the Christmas tree.

The hostess served sandwiches, hot chocolate and fruit cake. Plate favors were red bells having Santa Claus attached to them.

The members of the club are entertained each month in the various homes of those belonging. Miss Taylor, teacher of Home Economics, is the sponsor.

THERE had been few changes in the house. The house was very old, but it was beautiful with the mellow dignity of age. It had seen so much, it had heard so much that it felt not only old but wise and understanding. Perhaps it was not even age that it felt. With so much youth and romance and gayety coming into the house from time to time it felt young and romantic and gay itself.

But this year it was worried. The house believed in tradition, in memory, in sentiment, in anniversary. Particularly the house believed in Christmas.

Every Christmas it had been decorated. Green wreaths had been hung in every window. Great branches of pine had hung over the ancestral portraits which were heavy enough to bear them. Smaller pictures were given smaller sprays of green. Red candles were lighted in the candlesticks on the mantelpiece every Christmas eve. Every Christmas eve there had always been some members of the family who had moved away and had come back. The house listened silently, expectantly for the whistle of the train on Christmas eve. Then for the noise of sleigh bells and the crackle of the sleigh stopping in front of the house to let out its family members who had journeyed back home for Christmas.

Of recent years it had been an automobile that had honked and stopped before the house. The house liked a sleigh better. But still it kept up with the times. It liked having an automobile in front of its door during the summer—and it liked the arrival of the automobile at Christmas time.

It was not this modern invention that had bothered the house this year it was something else.

For years and years and years there had been a little piece of mistletoe hung under the old lamp in the front hall. It was a funny old lamp. It had pictures on its four glass sides and it was really the lamp holder, for every evening just at dusk one of the members of the family would come out and pull the lamp holder down on its workable chain and tip the lighted lamp just enough and most carefully so it would fit inside. Then back up the lamp was pulled again. From this had always hung the mistletoe.

Mistletoe was sometimes hard to get, but a little piece had always been obtained. One year there had been only two white berries on the mistletoe, but this year in spite of a great predominance of green there were five white berries. So it was not this that worried the house. It was because there was no longer a lamp. The lamp holder was there, hanging in the front hall, but it had been fastened up so that it stayed up all the time now. It didn't have to be pulled down. There was an electric globe in it and it was turned on by a button on the side of the wall.

It was this electric light that bothered the house. Somehow it seemed as though the mistletoe hung from the electric light would not be so romantic. It was such a change. And romance, the house felt, was not something to be changed in a twinkling, in the turning of the button.

However, the mistletoe hung there, hung there as best it could with its red ribbon attachment, its large amount of pale-green leaves, its fine white berries.

The presents were opened in front of the fire. Then the candles were put out—for they must be lighted again on Christmas night. They must not all burn out in one evening. That was the custom.

There was a slight lull after the excitement of the opening of the presents. And then came a ring at the old door bell. Sometimes the old door bell stayed out when it was pulled out, but on the whole it was a very good door bell in spite of its great age. Besides, didn't the members of the family always look after the door bell? Didn't they always push it in if they found it out when they were coming home, and didn't they announce as they got inside—"That was only my pushing the bell in. I found it out."

Oh, most of the time the door bell worked beautifully. This time it fairly burst itself with the laughing ring that it gave.

"A caller," said the house to itself.

"A caller," said the family to one another. "It's pretty late. Who can it be? But let us see. Our lights are all lighted. Whoever it was couldn't help but see that we are up, and people know how late we sit up Christmas eve."

The door was opened. One of the youngest members of the family opened the door. Not one of the children—they were in bed. But one of the youngest members just the same.

Joan's Heart Sang a Quiet, Happy Little Song.

It was Joan who had opened the door. Joan with her bright color and blond hair and blue eyes and jolly, skipping little laugh. You thought of water skipping over pebbles in a brook when you heard Joan laugh.

"Oh," Joan said. "Oh," she said again.

The family inside were wondering why Joan didn't bring the caller inside. Or was it just a message perhaps. Or was it a late package? Or was it a mistake? Or what?

"Oh," Joan said, still holding open the door. "Oh," said Joan again.

"Joan, Merry Christmas. Do let's make up. I can't see a future without you. I love you so much."

Oh, how Joan's heart sang a quiet, happy little song all to itself.

It was wonderful to think he would never be happy without her. The thought of his unhappiness without her made her rejoice!

It had been a stupid quarrel—it had been hard saying such mean things when both of them knew they didn't mean it.

"Joan!" He caught sight of the mistletoe. And the house fairly creaked aloud with excitement. The electric globe in the old lamp holder made no difference. Nothing made any difference. Here was youth and romance and gayety. Here was the mistletoe inspiring what every true mistletoe should inspire.

"Joan," called the family from within. "Who is there?"

"Barry," she answered. "He's taking off his coat."

Barry took off his coat then and went inside.

They were clasping hands.

The mistletoe looked quite elated.

"I did a good job," the mistletoe said—"patched up a quarrel and renewed a romance."

"Good work," said the house. "I approve of you."

"Merry Christmas," the mistletoe ended.
